

Greenleaf Announces New Programming

Greenleaf is excited that we will begin expanding the services provided to our participants. The new programming will include instruction, training, and consultation services outside of what we normally provide to our participants and their families as well as businesses.

We were able to launch this program with Disability and Inclusion Etiquette Workshops with local businesses. Our Community and Donor Engagement Specialist, Marck Harrison, was able to inform many people about the ways they can make their businesses more accessible and accommodating to people with different needs. These talks were a big success and the businesses were welcoming and receptive to our mission.

Future programs will include:

- Parent Education related to disability services, the transition from school to work, workplace accommodations, and the parent role in providing vocational support to adult children with disabilities
- Basic Financial Literacy instruction that also includes information related to STABLE accounts and the effects of employment on benefits such as Social Security, Medicaid, and food stamps
- Life Skills instruction and coaching that address many of the things that can get in the way of vocational success, including self-care, time management, effective communication, and problem solving.
- Job Seeking Skills training that includes resume writing, interview preparation and practice, learning how to locate and apply for appropriate job openings, and self-advocacy
- Job Club to offer small group support and instruction to job seekers facing obstacles to employment

Elizabeth says “I wanted to be able to get a good job so that I could have a good future. Having a job means I can be a productive citizen and be responsible for myself. While we don’t know what’s going to happen in the future, I’m setting myself up to survive any ups and downs that may occur.”
